LBJ SEEKS BREAKTHROUGH

—MAKARIOS HITS TURKEY—

Cyprus May Not End Pacts

From Press Reports

Nicosia, Cyprus—President Archbishop Makarios backed off Wednesday night from an announced position that he was pushing unilaterally to scrap treaties binding Cyprus with Britain, Greece and Turkey. He reconsidered after Britain challenged his action. Against a background of fresh bloodletting in the communal conflict on this eastern Mediterranean island, the Greek Cypriot archbishop made it clear in a second statement that the treaties have not been abrogated yet. He said:

"Our decision is to secure the termination of these treaties by appropriate means."

In his first statement Makarios said he had decided to cancel the British-Greek-Turkish treaty that guaranteed Cypriot statehood following the island's liberation from British colonial rule in 1960.

A Nicosia announcement said Makarios made this decision known in cables to heads of state around the world.

Kuchuk-Challenge

A spokesman for Dr. Fazil Kuchuk, vice president and leader of the Turkish minority, said Makarios has no authority to end the treaties.

The spokesman said the constitution of Cyprus gives the vice president the right of veto over any presidential decision.

Makarios said, "The attitude of Turkey has been one of aggression against the integrity and sovereignty of the republic of Cyprus." He said acts of aggression constituted a violation of the treaty of alliance.

3 Monks Killed

But then, as tension between Turk and Greek Cypriots was heightened by a raid on the Greek Orthodox monastery of Galactoformousa in which three monks were killed and three wounded, Britain challenged Makarios' right to act alone.

The British clearly feared fresh outbreaks of violence if Makarios pursued his intention to declare the treaties abrogated forthwith. Britain is acting as policeman in behalf of the Cyprus government, a member of the British Commonwealth.

In Ankara, Turkish reaction to Makarios' statements came in the form of a statement that Turkey considers any unilateral action on the treaties illegal and non-binding on Turkey.

"We are bound to stand by these treaties and we will take every measure and step for their literal application," a Turkish foreign ministry spokesman said.

In Athens, Greece placed its armed forces on a state of "immediate readiness" Thursday to cope with a possible invasion of Cyprus by Turkey, informed sources said.

The sources said the Greek government received information about Turkish military movements indicating an impending invasion and that Greece would invade the island republic in the eastern Mediterranean if Turkey took such action.

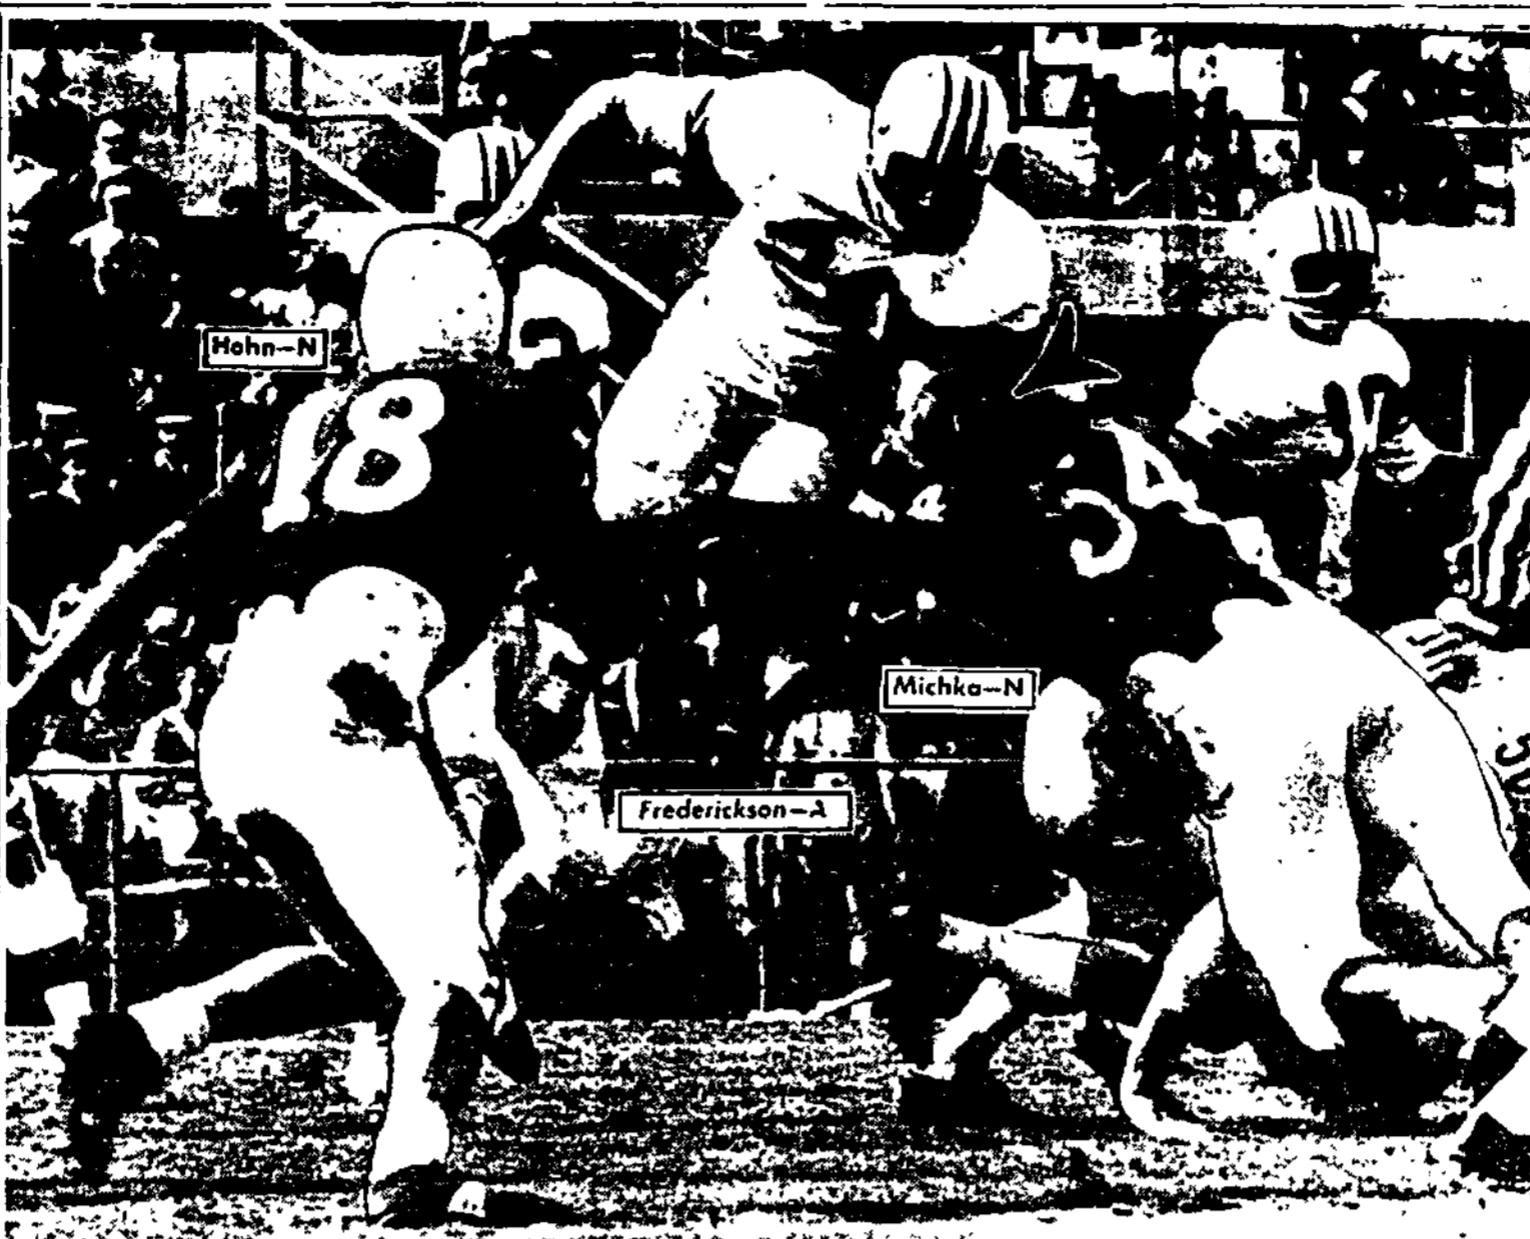

No Shooting

In Nicosia, for the third day running, there was no shooting as British troops continued to maintain a precarious truce. Turk Cypriot sources said they found the bodies of a Turk priest and his 16-year-old son when they reoccupied a Turkish home. They said other Turk homes had been set on fire.

Meanwhile, Greek survivors of the attack on the Galactoformousa monastery, about 25 miles southwest of Nicosia, said the attack there was staged by five or six Turkish Cypriots.

Under the treaty of guarantee, Cyprus undertook to insure the maintenance of its independence, territorial integrity and security. It also promised not to take part in any political or economic union with any state. Britain, Greece and Turkey guaranteed this treaty.

The treaty of alliance provided for cooperation among Cyprus, Greece and Turkey for common defense, and allowed for the stationing of small Greek and Turkish garrisons on the island. Britain retained two bases.

Devaney: Nebraska 'Greatest'

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Miami, Fla. — Nebraska as a school and Nebraska as a state came in for praise from Nebraska Coach Bob Devaney Wednesday after his team had whipped Auburn, 13-7, in the pearl anniversary Orange Bowl game.

"You always have a word of prayer after game," Devaney told his squad as it met in the dressing room after the win, "but I want to say something before we pray."

"I am thankful for having the greatest bunch of men have ever known as players and for having the greatest group of assistant coaches in football," the happy Husker coach continued.

"The Greatest School"

Then turning to NU Chancellor Clifford Hardin, Devaney said, "And this is the greatest school in the world." He turned to Nebraska Gov. Frank Morrison, saying, "And Nebraska is the greatest state in the nation."

The Husker grididers and coaches then prayed.

After this few minutes of seriousness, head coach broke loose in the NU dressing room as professional coaches scrambled to get names on pro football contracts and sports writers and broadcasters hustled for post-game comments.

Meanwhile delirious Nebraska fans fought their way to get out of the stadium to a appropriate celebration points.

No official functions were scheduled Wednesday night, but even in a city as big as Miami, the 8,500 Husker fans will run into other scarlet-clad rooters.

Complete Recovery

The Nebraska fans will be celebrating what can be considered as a complete recovery from ill-times in football — a disease that had bothered Husker teams for over 20 years, but that was cured in just two years by Devaney.

Devaney's expressed love for Nebraska and the Husker school Wednesday was no greater than the love Nebraska fans have for the man who brought them a winning team.

Nebraska also broke a two-game losing streak for the Big Eight in the Orange Bowl.

Wednesday's game may be the end of the Big Eight tie-up with the Orange Bowl. The contract expired when the Nebraska-Auburn game ended.

The Orange Bowl victory gives Nebraska two wins in a row in bowl games, including a 36-34 win over Miami in last year's Gotham Bowl.

Nebraska had not won a bowl game in two appearances before Devaney came to Lincoln, losing in the 1941 Rose Bowl and the 1955 Orange Bowl.

Devaney's expressed love for Nebraska and the Husker school Wednesday was no greater than the love Nebraska fans have for the man who brought them a winning team.

After seven straight losing seasons since 1954, the Huskers have now put 9-2 and 10-1 seasons back-to-back, placing Nebraska in the prominent position it held on the nation's football map 30 to 40 years ago.

Nebraska also broke a two-game losing streak for the Big Eight in the Orange Bowl. Wednesday's game may be the end of the Big Eight tie-up with the Orange Bowl. The contract expired when the Nebraska-Auburn game ended.

U.S. Shouldn't 'Drag Its Feet'

... IN COLD WAR TALKS

Johnson City, Tex. — President Johnson, administration sources said Wednesday, is determined to seek new breakthroughs on peace as part of an unrelenting peace offensive. White House officials said such a peace offensive, as Johnson sees it, should be what he calls today's hard line on communism.

The President is confident, they said, that this nation is fully alert to Red tactics after 15 years of cold war and thinks it would be muddle-headed should we fail to take steps to seek peace because we are afraid of being taken in by Communist tactics.

Sensitive

Johnson was represented as being acutely sensitive to the fact that the East and West stand on the edge of a nuclear precipice. A friend quoted him as saying he does not think the United States should or can "drag its feet" until after election before pressing for breakthroughs on peace.

His views were made known a few hours after President Johnson told Soviet Premier Khrushchev that 1964 should be a year of action on peace and not just talk about peace.

In his message to Khrushchev and Brezhnev, Johnson said the strengthening of peace is "the highest purpose in the new year" of the American people and their government. Then he added:

Passed

"The time for simply talking about peace, however, has passed. 1964 should be a year in which we take further steps toward that goal.

"In this spirit I shall strive for the further improvement of relations between our two countries."

The chief executive was described as bent on keeping and improving the United States preparedness.

Respect

And Johnson, those close to the President said, has developed profound respect for Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and has been greatly impressed by Joint Chiefs of Staff of the armed services.

Administration sources made two other points:

"This is going to be a working year for Johnson and he doesn't expect the people around him to be on the cock-tail circuit in 1964.

The chief executive is generally happy with personnel in government. But he would like to bring in new talent from the academic field from all over the country. This would be a departure from the late President John F. Kennedy's heavy reliance on Harvard men for advice and for government service.

Answer

The President's message calling for action toward peace came in the form of an answer to the Kremlin leaders' greetings.

Khrushchev and Brezhnev had told Johnson in a New Year's Eve message that the past year saw "significant improvement in the approach to the solutions of urgent international problems and in the development of Soviet-American relations."

"We would like to hope," they said, "that the coming year will be marked by further significant successes, both in the resolution of important international problems and the improvement of relations between our countries in the interest of the Soviet and American people and the interests of strengthening world peace."

Greetings

Both the Soviet leaders and the President offered cordial New Year's greetings and best wishes.

The Johnson message was made public at a press center in Austin, Tex., while President Johnson, the First Lady and nine of her relatives were getting ready to sit down at a holiday dinner featuring turkey and the black-eyed peas which are a good luck tradition for the day in the southland.

It was a day of work, too, for the chief executive, once again he got in some licks on a budget of around $100 billion he will be sending to Congress Jan. 21.

Far Better

He reported also the results are "far better than expected" from a pilot program designed to persuade young folks to stay in high school. He said in a statement that this program, launched by the late President John F. Kennedy, ought to be expanded beyond the 63 communities it covered.

On the basis of the report from the federal commissioner of education, Francis Kepel, Johnson said that:

"The 1963 results show that where local effort was made, one out of two actual or potential drop-outs returned to school—and nine out of ten are staying in school."

Ambassador

Johnson also announced he intends to nominate Edwin M. Martin, former assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, as ambassador to Argentina. He will succeed Robert McClinton, who the White House said is to be appointed to "another important post in the near future."

Martin, 55, native of Dayton, Ohio, was praised by Johnson in a statement as a man of "extraordinary skill and good judgment in handling our political relationships with other countries."

Omaha Child First Traffic Victim Of 1964

An Omaha boy, 2½, was killed early Wednesday afternoon when a car driven by his father went out of control two and a half miles west of Ashland on U.S. 6.

Dead was Bobby Brauer. Four other members of the family were injured and were listed in fair condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital here.

The State Safety Patrol said the car was driven by Robert S. Brauer, 3031 So. 122nd, Omaha. The car was westbound.

Safety Patrol Trooper Lynn Parks said the father told him a tire suddenly went flat and the auto went out of control, left the road and rolled over. Several occupants were thrown from the vehicle.

Hospitalized were Brauer, with severe head lacerations; his 28-year-old wife, Connie, with facial cuts and bruises; a daughter, Collette, 6, with severe facial lacerations and possible head injury; and a son, Darren, 3 months, with bruises and abrasions.

It was the first traffic fatality of 1964 for Nebraska.

Rehabilitation Aide To Get Psychiatric Training

By BETTY PERSON

Star Staff Writer

Dale J. Hatch, Lincoln district counselor in the State Vocational Rehabilitation Services, next week will begin an internship in a special training course at the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute (NPI) at Omaha — one of three such programs offered in the nation.

The federally sponsored programs, aimed at improving rehabilitation services for those who have experienced mental illnesses, are conducted at Harvard University, Oregon University and at NPI through the University of Nebraska.

Hatch will be the second Nebraskan to participate in the program which was started in September, 1962.

Gerald C. Redler, Vocational Rehabilitation counselor at the Norfolk State Hospital, was the first, and will complete his six-month training course late in February.

Algeria-Cameroun Tie

Algiers (UPI) — Algeria and Cameroun announced the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two African countries.

The counselor interns have an opportunity to get clinical experience under controlled conditions through the study of patients at NPI and through the cooperative study of regular rehabilitation clients in the Omaha district office.

State Vocational Rehabilitation Director Fred Novak noted that "special skill is needed in the rehabilitation of the mentally ill" and that "counselors with this training will be much more competent" in handling the problems of clients who have had mental illness.

The program is limited to six students for each six-month course, and all must be connected with state rehabilitation services.

Must Agree To Stay

Under conditions of the program, the counselor interns are paid by the federal government the salary they would receive each month on their state job, plus a $200 monthly stipend. In return for this, counselors must agree to return to the Norfolk hospital upon completion of his training, and Hatch will return to the Lincoln area, though Novak said his specific assignment has not yet been determined.

In Lincoln Area

He said he anticipates that Hatch will work "more intensely" with the Southeast Mental Health Clinic at Lincoln, as well as with patients and inmates of other state institutions in the Lincoln area.

Dr. T. Bulent Tunakan is the NPI clinical director and coordinator of the program. Irving J. Schaefer, formerly in the Rehabilitation Service's Omaha district office, is a lay instructor for the program.

Stating it is "very fine to have this training program available to our counselors," Novak said it will help in learning the dynamics of a client's illness, and help him make a better vocational adjustment in his community.

Chiefs Find Funds For Economic Aid

Washington (AP) — Foreign aid officials surveying the damage from Congress' $1.5 billion slash in new funds have found they still have enough money for an economic program nearly the size of last year's.

But the funds available for overseas arms aid are down sharply from 1963. And the over-all money total they have for the current 12 months is $1.2 billion less than they wanted.

The surprise in the aid financing picture, after Congress voted only $3 billion of the $4.5 billion in new appropriations sought by the administration, lies in an unusually large carryover from sums voted in past years.

Officials of the Agency for International Development (AID) have found $669,876,000 still available from previously voted funds that were never committed or that have been recovered from unfulfilled projects.

Thus, according to figures available today, the total foreign-aid money available for fiscal 1964 is $3,669,876,000. This is down only $486 million from last year's total program, counting carryover.

Of the 1964 total, $2,519,876,000 is available for economic assistance abroad — almost the same as the $2,557,554,000 program for 1963.

Down

But the money available for military assistance in 1964 is down to $1,150,000,000 counting carryover, in contrast to 1963's $1,598,600,000.

The picture is different in comparing the revised 1964 program with what the administration had wanted for this year, for it had sought a sizable increase over 1963 in economic aid.

In asking Congress for $4.5 billion in new appropriations, the administration had counted on an additional $334 million carryover from past years. Thus it had been planning a $4.8 billion program for 1964. It got only $3.6 billion, counting carryover.

Economic Cut

In the $1.2-billion cut, economic aid went down $800 million compared with $4.0 billion of the arms program.

AID Administrator David Bell and his associates are still trying to decide just where the overseas program should be reduced to come within the $3.6-billion package finally determined by Congress last Monday.

The pontiff, speaking from a window of his studio to a crowd of 30,000 in St. Peter's Square, called his Palestine pilgrimage and the Ecumenical Council two great events he saw for 1964.

It was the Pope's first public statement of the new year.

He began Wednesday an intensified three-day period of prayer for his Holy Land trip.

He leaves by plane Jan. 4 and returns Jan. 6.

In the Holy Land he will visit Christian shrines in Jordan and Israel and will meet with Patriarch Athenagoras I of Constantinople (Istanbul)

In the first encounter between

Vatican City (AP) — Pope Paul VI said this New Year's Day that his trip to the Holy Land next weekend "may have an impact for many years to come."

The Roman Catholic ruler also indicated the Vaticano Ecumenical Council, opened by Pope John XXIII in 1962, may come to a close at the end of this year.

Speaking in Italian, Pope Paul told the crowd in the sun-splashed square below his apartment:

"Shortly we will start our pilgrimage to the Holy Land. We will remember you and will pray for God to give you grace."

He said that a second great event for the new year was the council, "which must be conducted to a good end."

The Pope's words indicated he hoped the council, whose third session will run from next September to November, would be concluded in 1964.

Further Trips Likely

Vatican City (AP) — It is taken for granted at the Vatican that the Holy Land pilgrimage of Pope Paul VI is only the beginning of papal travels abroad.

The three-day Holy Land pilgrimage by Pope Paul, starting Saturday, will mark the first time a pontiff has been out of Italy in 150 years.

Both popes had many invitations from Catholics throughout the world. Now that he has decided to make one trip abroad, Paul probably will find it difficult to turn the invitations down.

Rose Parade Unfolds In Stirring Panorama

Pasadena, Calif. (UPI) — The diamond jubilee Tournament of Roses unfolded Wednesday in a stirring panorama for a million and a half sun-blessed spectators, contrasting floral elegance with two touching tributes to the late President John F. Kennedy.

Another 80 million, estimated, watched the spectacle on television.

Temperatures ranged from 70-80 degrees as the 62 floats decked with every conceivable type of flower, smartly-stepping bands, and equestrian units moved along the five-mile parade route under a clear, smogless sky.

At the head of the parade was a car carrying former president Dwight Eisenhower, the Tournament of Roses marshal, and Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower.

The float carrying Rose Queen Nancy Kneeland, and the U.S. Marine Corps Band also were in the parade vanguard.

The throng was somewhat larger — a little more than last year's crowd estimated also at a million and a half.

More than 35 persons required hospital treatment after collapsing along the parade route.

The sweepstakes award for the most beautiful entry in the parade went to Long Beach, Calif., for "Diamond Jubilee."

Two floats in particular brought home to the viewers the memory of the late President Kennedy. One was an empty floral rocking chair set near a statue of Lincoln on a float marking the 100th anniversary of the Emancipation Proclamation.

Another was the city of Burbank's entry, "The President Goes to the Prom," recalling the late President's surprise visit to a high school graduation last June.

W. BERLINERS ... back from party in east.

Visiting W. Berliners Up Pressure For Extension

Berlin (AP) — A throng of West Berliners spent New Year's Day in East Berlin, building up pressure on both Communist and Western authorities to prolong the holiday pass arrangement beyond next Sunday's scheduled cutoff date.

The mass flow of 95,000 New Year's Day visitors started in predawn darkness, even as other West Berliners still were streaming back across the wall wearing fancy hats from New Year's Eve parties.

The total number of holiday visits through the wall since Dec. 19 climbed past 800,000 with the New Year's Day count, the largest for a 24-hour period since last Sunday's 154,000.

Both Days

The official East German news agency, ADN, reported that 172,740 West Berliners had spent one or both days of the New Year holiday in East Berlin. Several thousand had passes for both days and stayed all night.

An undetermined number of West Berliners had to be carried home by ambulance after collapsing from the combination of late hours, hard drinking and emotional tension. But no major incidents were reported along the wall, still under guard by thousands of armed men.

Berliners united after 28 months of separation by the Communist wall greeted the new year with a frenzy of drink, song and exploding fireworks.

As the new year arrived, East Berlin's Karl Marx Allee became a no man's land of exploding fireworks.

Wednesday nights mass return provided a preview of the heart-wrenching farewell scenes due at the wall this weekend if the emotional Berliners are to be separated again.

The West Berlin city government has said it will negotiate with the East German regime on extending the visits. West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt is under conflicting pressures — from West Berliners who want to continue seeing their loved ones and from Western allied officials and Berlin newspapers warning against political concessions to the Communists.

The East Germans had to consider their public opinion too. The Communists insisted that all is possible in further talks but all their propaganda was directed at blaming the West if the wall is again closed.

Technically Brandt views the wall-crossing as a purely technical, humanitarian arrangement rather than an international agreement between states. The allies and the West German government were obviously worried that wall agreements helped support the East German regime's claim to recognition.

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The Mayor's Council on Human Relations has come up with a report on minority housing that offers endless possibilities for good. If action were taken in only a few of the many areas discussed, real progress could be made in the matter of improved housing for minority groups in Lincoln. Also, the report shows that Lincoln has made progress and that the problem is not so large as to be insurmountable.

The council calls for action in improving existing present housing and in providing new low-cost housing. In both cases, there is a chance for major reliance upon existing sources of credit within the community and upon approaches that could be implemented without substantial disagreement. But along with the hope offered by the report is the experience of the past which tells us that we need a more realistic attitude than we have had to date. The report, for instance, suggests the exploration of low-cost housing being provided through private enterprise under terms of a new FHA financing program.

This would be an ideal approach but if the past is any judge of things, it is wishful thinking. Private enterprise in Lincoln has never done anything but delay low-cost housing with a lot of false and empty promises. There is no harm in exploring this avenue again but it should not be permitted to stop action in other areas.

Finding risk capital for low-cost housing and for improvement of established neighborhoods is another area of slim hope. It is a fine idea and would constitute a wonderful community oriented solution but we have never found any risk capital in Lincoln held for such social-minded purposes.

There is already in existence and functioning on a small scale an organization devoted to the raising of risk capital for providing integrated housing. This is not necessarily low-income housing, either, and the organization has not found an excessive amount of cash available for purchase of its stock. The organization has yet to publicly announce the success of its venture and it has been in business for a good long time now. The council also advocates an extension of what might be called open occupancy throughout the city of Lincoln. It is noted that recent times have produced much more integration in housing than the average person might be aware of. This is a fact and does offer a great deal of hope. It is a credit to Lincoln that progress has that this country has existed under three flags.

The new park is verdant and scenic, nestling in the hills and bluffs of the Missouri valley. It is a bit of Nebraska that existed before territorial days and which was venerable at the time of statehood. The park will give us a sense of maturity and a real connection with the deep past. The Missouri was a thoroughfare for Spanish and French traders, explorers and trappers in colonial days. The park is an invitation to delve into the musty records of the earlier proprietors of this land. Much that is marked down there is not known by us. Nebrascans have been too much absorbed in only the most recent chapter of their history.

Rural Industry

An extensive study of industry situated in a farming community, undertaken by an Iowa State University economist, has been completed. It confirms the most hopeful contentions of those who believe American industry should be spread more evenly over the country.

The economist found verification for the belief that a proper measure of industry is good for the urban centers. But for other reasons it could be even better for rural neighborhoods.

Farmers, whose vocation has made them mechanically handy, find it easy to become skilled industrial employees quickly. Their own ownership of machines give them a proprietorial attitude toward company machines. Their ingenuity in getting the best out of their own machines gress was not in the cards without drastic overhaul of the program.

Foreign Aid's Role

Perhaps both the government of the United States and the citizens of this nation could benefit from an examination of another foreign aid program. It might surprise people to learn that there is also a substantial program of private foreign aid from sources in this nation to all parts of the free world.

This is the aid administered to the tune of $53 million in 1963 by the Ford Foundation to less-developed countries in Africa, the Middle East, South and Southeast Asia, Latin America and the Caribbean area. Henry T. Hald, president of the foundation, states that United States assistance will continue to have a special role.

"We are still regarded by many nations," he said, "as a young country with a revolutionary heritage. American society stands out as the example of successful pragmatism par excellence, as capable of attacking formidable problems swiftly and of dealing with large numbers confidently."

The foundation, however, in its annual report documents every cent of its aid in terms of the recipient nations, specific projects, the demonstrated need and the expected results. Thus, we see a common expression of principle but a difference of approach. If the government could be as explicit and discriminating with its aid program as is the foundation, perhaps public foreign aid would become both more acceptable and productive.

Aging Lawmakers Hurting Congress

WASHINGTON — For almost six months in 1963, appropriations for the Agriculture Department totaling over $6 billion were held up, thanks in large part to a row between two senior congressmen from Georgia and Mississippi. They were arguing over a peanut laboratory and a food utilization laboratory.

The delay illustrates the manner in which congressional seniority has become so encrusted that it undermines efficient government. The two rowing congressmen were Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia, and Rep. Jamie Whitten of Mississippi, both Democrats and both powerful members of the subcommittees which vote appropriations for agriculture.

In 1963, Russell demanded a peanut laboratory costing $1,600,000 at Dawson, Ga., and held up the Department of Agriculture appropriations bill trying to get it. But Mississippi's Whitten opposed.

For two months the two southern Democrats sat gloating at each other, each refusing to budge. As a result of this and other differences, the agriculture appropriations bill was the last one passed in 1962.

This past year Russell upped his demand to include not only the peanut lab at Dawson, but a food utilization plant at Athens, Ga., at a cost of $7,500,000.

A gain Whitten opposed. His opposition was based partly on economy. He did not want to see a lot of new laboratories built, when the work could be done in labs which the Agriculture Department already had in operation. Naturally, also, Whitten didn't want to see Georgia favored against his own state of Mississippi.

Sen. Russell used to be chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee for Agriculture, has now stepped down in favor of Sen. Spessard Holland of Florida, a kindly gentleman who doesn't worry too much about what his Georgia neighbor wants as long as the citrus fruit industry is taken care of.

So the deadlock over the peanut lab in Dawson, Ga., and the food utilization lab in Athens, Ga., dragged out in 1963 until one week before Christmas. Meanwhile the Agriculture Department had been operating ever since June 30 on the old 1962 appropriations bill.

Finally, just before Christmas, the gentleman from Mississippi gave the senator from Georgia the southeastern research lab he wanted at Athens, Ga., at a cost of $9,500,000. The peanut lab at Dawson was skipped for the time being, but with an agreement that it would come up in the supplemental appropriation bill later.

In return, Rep. Whitten got $1,500,000 to build a cotton seed control laboratory at Stoneville, Miss. This — yes, you guessed it — is right in Whitten's district.

A Newsman's View Of U.S. In 1964

NEW YORK. — People in my business who don't have enough vision to know where they are going to be 15 minutes hence like to sit down at this time of year and try to convince their readers they know precisely what will happen during the following 52 weeks.

So here goes:

President Johnson will be unopposed at the Democratic convention and win comfortably in the November election. His popularity will decline from its present swollen state — typical of all new incumbents — but not nearly enough to defeat him.

He'll take the South like a benevolent Sherman. Mississippi conceivably might bolt, but that will not mean anything. Big labor will swing his way, not with the enthusiasm it gave JFK but with enough to insure good majorities in the major cities. He will be an active and good campaigner.

LBJ's running mate, Sen. Eugene McCarthy, of Minnesota, will be of great help to him through the Middle West and among Catholics. The Kennedy brothers will campaign vigorously for the ticket. Robert Kennedy will resign as attorney general after the election and take charge of the vast Kennedy real estate and other holdings. In time he will oppose Leverett Saltonstall for a seat in the U.S. Senate.

The foundation, however, in its annual report documents every cent of its aid in terms of the recipient nations, specific projects, the demonstrated need and the expected results. Thus, we see a common expression of principle but a difference of approach. If the government could be as explicit and discriminating with its aid program as is the foundation, perhaps public foreign aid would become both more acceptable and productive.

will stubbornly persist and, in the end, the kingmakers will turn to Richard Nixon. After many misgivings, Sen. Goldwater will accept second place on the ticket.

Once elected, President Johnson will put his brand on the White House by accepting, with expressions of regret, resignations of what by that time will be left of JFK's "Irish Mafia."

The President will find the climate propitious to meet with Khrushchev, perhaps at Geneva, and later accept the latter's invitation to visit the Soviet Union.

Charles de Gaulle will come to Washington and be seen to be nearly as mulish as pictured. The Soviet Union will pay its back dues in the UN, but not its share of the tab for the maintenance of UN troops in the Congo — and UN will let it go at that. The stowing war in Angola will erupt, and the question of Sudan's ruthless handling of missionaries will be aired. The screws will turn a bit tighter on Castro. Jack Ruby will get 20 years. The Pope's trip to the Holy Land, and his meeting with Patriarch Athenagoras I will go so well that he will later visit India and consider invitations from other countries, including the U.S. The New York world's fair will outdistance all expectations. John Glenn will make another trip into space as commander of a two-man Gemini capsule, then become a chief technical adviser on project Apollo (and give more attention to appeals to him to run for governor of Ohio). Red China will foul up its first atomic test.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has a torn cartilage in his knee. An operation has been suggested. Could you give us some information on this, because we are confused. Do the sharp pains ever go away without surgery? How dangerous is the operation and what are the complications? What causes torn cartilage? — MRS. E.S.

Cartilage is a fairly tough, smooth, elastic sort of material — not muscle, not bone, not soft tissue. One kind of cartilage gives shape to your ears. Lots of flexible fish "bones" are cartilage.

In the knee (and other joints) layers of cartilage provide the smooth surfaces on which the Molner bones ride so slickly.

The knee, however, is particularly subject to damage if subjected to pressures from certain directions, such as in a fall. Blows in football, basketball and other sports, can rip, loosen or even tear a piece loose from the cartilage. Such injury hurts!

And usually the pain persists. Sometimes prolonged immobilization will permit sufficient healing, but this cannot be relied upon — and in any event, not too many people can afford the time to do this, especially since success cannot be guaranteed.

Removal of the torn portion of cartilage affords permanent relief. Some years ago, before surgical techniques had developed to their present high state, there was sensible reluctance to "monkey with a bad knee." This no longer is so.

The operation is not dangerous, but it takes time before healing is sufficient to permit carrying the full weight on the knee. After all, with each step most of your weight has to be supported first by one knee, then the other.

Therefore one of the questions to be considered is how long your husband can afford the temporary disability while the knee heals after the operation. Discuss this with your surgeon.

Since the operation is an "elective" one, not an emergency, you can choose when leisure is available.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the calorie count of a baked potato skin? Does it have any food value? I could make a meal out of potato skins, but can't find the calorie value. — MRS. W.R.S.

Neither can I. My books show 85 calories for an average baked potato — and 85 calories for a peeled potato.

Apparent answer: The skin of a raw potato is mighty thin, hence not far above zero. However, it does contain small but useful amount of calcium, phosphorus and iron.

Dear Doctor: I had two chest X-rays last year and must have one now in connexion with my annual checkup. Do you think it is safe to have another so soon? — A.C.W.

When X-ray treatments may run from 10 to 20 minutes, in some cases, doesn't it put an end to your worries to realize that an X-ray film requires exposure of only about a tenth of a second? Your three X-rays together will amount to less than half a second of radiation. No, you needn't worry.

Dear Dr. Molner: On the record of my operation it says "empyema of the gallbladder with obstruction and cholecystectomy." Would you break it down in simple words? — MRS. R.M.

The obstruction is clear enough — the outlet was plugged, doubtless by a stone or a stone. "Empyema" means pus formation, which is not unlikely in such cases, of course. And "cholecystectomy" means removal of the gallbladder.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain the difference between a cyst and a tumor. — C.G.

A cyst is a sac which fills with fluid or semi-fluid material, such as a small gland which becomes plugged and cannot discharge the substances it secretes. A tumor, on the other hand, is a growth. The simplest I can think of is a wart. A common cyst is of the sebaceous or oily skin glands.

Power Needs, Aims

BROKEN BOW, Neb. — On December 18, 1963, I attended an all-day hearing before the Nebraska Power Review Board on Consumers' Public Power District application to install a new 110 KW electric generator as an addition to the present 75 KW atomic-powered generator in the Hallam power plant south of Lincoln, Nebraska.

The story is that when and if the atomic power plant becomes a permanent operation, the coal or gas heated boiler that is now standby for the atomic-produced steam power could power another generator at a lower relative cost instead of just being standby power for the atomic method of producing steam to run the one generator.

My objection to this new generator instead of accepting a similar amount of Bureau of Reclamation power to meet Nebraska's needs through 1966, is one of timing.

There is a new, major allocation of Bureau power to be made in the next few weeks. If Nebraska agencies provide their own generation, at this time, the Bureau power will be allocated elsewhere and the stage will be set to build still other relatively high cost plants in Nebraska at the time that this same plant might be built if the available blocks of Bureau power were taken first.

This is a repetition of what occurred in 1958 when the last previous major allocation of Bureau of Reclamation power was imminent.

In December, 1958, at Sioux Falls, South Dakota, D. J. DeBoer for the Nebraska Public Power System and Ray Schacht for Consumers deduced 200,000 kilowatts from their request for Bureau power allocation to make room for the 100,000 Canaday plant at Lexington and the present 75,000 Hallam plant, over the protests of the Nebraska REA people present at Sioux Falls and the municipal group.

The municipal group from Nebraska stood fast and put in their request for Bureau power as planned by filing separate applications for power. As a result, the municipal group got 83 percent of their total needs, and NPPS and Consumers got 15 percent, as they requested. Later NPPS protested that the municipal group got more than their fair share! A phony, hypocritical protest. A 1962 report by R. D. McWha, engineer for the Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District, one of the two parties to the joint operation called the Nebraska Public Power System, stated that the net cost of the Bureau power coming into Nebraska to NPPS was 3.71 mills per KW. The cost of Canaday plant power was 5.5 mills and all other power supply for NPPS was higher. On December 18, 1963, Ray Schacht testified that he didn't know the cost of atomic-produced power at Hallam.

He also testified, as did Howard Erickson for NPPS, that present transmission interties between Nebraska and the Bureau of Reclamation and the Bureau of Reclamation to the north or west were insufficient to bring in the power needed in 1966, even if the power were there. They admitted that the power was there, either from the Bureau of Reclamation or the Basin Electric Group, or Omaha Public Power District, or other sources not even officially contacted.

Delaying an $8.9 million power plant saves over $350,000 per year of delay in interest costs alone. Getting cheaper power may save more every year from now on.

An adequate transmission interconnection is a "must" for the years ahead, and for standby power even though a normal local supply were available. Therefore, the obvious, sensible, low-cost plan is to build the transmission lines first and use all the cheaper power that is being allocated so that Nebraska gets its share and keeps down average costs.

A 230,000-volt line from Gering, Nebraska, to North Platte, as an extension of the 230-line now being built from Oahe, South Dakota, to Gering, Nebraska, would be the obvious first step so as to tie the eastern and western areas together, as well as to make more cheap power available to eastern Nebraska. Not only Consumers' customers in 300 towns and the 8,000 farms Consumers serves, but all the rural people in the eastern two-thirds of Nebraska have millions at stake in power costs to see that high voltage transmis-

Park Taps History

Nebraska took a significant step at year's end. The Nebraska Game, Parks and Forestation Commission picked up 600 acres of land near Auburn as the beginning of the development of Indian Cave State Park.

Nothing could be more fitting. Deep southeast Nebraska needs historic recognition. Nebraskans need the park. The past there will take on new meaning.

The land, which crosses the Nemaha county line into Richardson county, contains the dim remnants of the ancient village of St. DeRoing. The area describes the small preserve set aside for half breed Indians under the Treaty of Prairie Du Chien in 1803. It was in existence at the time of the Louisiana Purchase—a reminder that this country has existed under three flags.

The new park is verdant and scenic, nesting in the hills and bluffs of the Missouri valley. NEW SERIES DUE FOR TV

Hollywood (UPI) — The New Year is already upon us and glimmering on the not-too-distant horizon are some new television series.

The video selling season has been going on for some time now. Hucksters have been riding jet aircraft between Hollywood and New York, walking in and out of sponsor offices, and buttonholing business men who might be interested in buying a video show.

One of the first of the new shows scheduled for 1964, is "Destry," a Western based on a movie of the same name. John Gavin stars in it.

Revue Studio, one of the world's biggest television factories, has a list of shows it is offering to networks.

One is a triple threat, three shows in one. It's called "90 Bristol Court," and consists of the apartment house adventures of three families, each of which has the ingredients needed for a half-hour situation comedy. The series is a 90-minute effort or can be broken up into three 30-minute shows.

Ed Montagne, producer of "McHale's Navy," has come up with a female version of that hit. He calls it "Broadside," a half-hour story of the Waves starring Kathy Nolan. "Ma and Pa Kettle" — remember those old Marjorie Main-Percy Kilbride movies? — may come to television in the person of heavy Andy Devine and Miss Patsy Kelly.

Revue is also peddling "Night People," a series about folks who work after dark. CBS-TV is giving the once-over to some series which might be offered on the web this year.

They include "Goggles" with Jerry Van Dyke, "The Jones Boys," and "John Stryker." Jackie Cooper is waiting with "Calhoun," in which he plays an agricultural agent in the Southwest. Bob Denver, formerly of "Dobie Gillis," might be back in "Gilligan's Island."

ABC-TV is looking at approximately 20 pilot films and scripts.

"Alexander the Great," a historical series, is under consideration by that network as is "Criminal at Large," the movie.

Ed Montague, producer of "McHale's Navy," has come up with a female version of that hit. He calls it "Broadside," a half-hour story of the Waves starring Kathy Nolan.

"Ma and Pa Kettle" returns, and so does old Mary in "Main-Perky Kilkenny movies" — come to television in the person of heavy Andy Devine and Miss Patsy Kelly.

Revue is also peddling "Night People," a series about folks who work after dark.

CBS-TV is giving the once-over to some series which might be offered on the web this year.

They include "Goggles" with Jerry Van Dyke, "The Jones Boys," and "John Striker." Jackie Cooper is working with William Holden, in which he plays an agricultural agent in the Southwest. Bob Denver, formerly of "Dobie Gillis," might be back in "Gilligan's Island."

ABC-TV is looking at approximately 20 pilot films and scripts.

"Alexander the Great," a historical series, is under consideration by that network as "Criminal at Large," the symbol of the rising sun and indications of two peaks.

They are remembered as Japanese military tactic — "reverse the obvious."

When he put this together on the map, it was plain as the nose on your face. Yamashita buried his lot under Montalban

Where did the General get the big lot? Well may you ask. And well may be answered.

England at that time of war was very worried.

They sent out the gold bullion to Singapore, the bastion of defense in the Far East. Who could be safer?

At this point, the "Tiger of Malaya" was in the thick of things.

His troops ran down through the jungle and jumped on Singapore's back door. The gold of England and of Singapore supposedly fell to him. And it is now buried in the hills of the Philippines. You like that?

Let me tell you one better. In early 1942, Ted Lewis, a gambler and hot vivant, went out to Manila with the troops to drive a truck on Bataan.

He set up a gambling game — that's being his business — with an Army colonel now dead.

"We cornered $17,000," Ted Lewis said. "We had a house on top of Manila's Bay View Hotel. "We sealed it in a can — soldered it in. And we buried it at the foot of a big tree next to a kilometer marking."

Ted spent the next four years in prison camps. When he came back to Manila he had a billion peso treasure which goes up and down and gives him dizzy spells.

He is digging at the site of the Wawa dam. When the dam is built, the treasure will be under water.

He is digging on the basis of a map — eight by ten inches. A map — eight by ten inches.

The map has all the things treasure maps should have: A sketch of a woman with a locket (is the treasure in a locket?)

The Japanese yen, Cayo

thinks.

Coast Guard Saves 1,000 Cubans In '63

Washington (AP) — The Coast Guard rescued nearly 1,000 refugees from Cuba in 1963, the service reported Wednesday.

The Coast Guard was assigned the job of preventing small, commando-type anti-Castro raiders from using U.S. territory to launch attacks against Cuba. In patrolling the area, the Coast Guard picked up the refugees as they tried to escape from the Cuban mainland.

Most of the refugees were picked up from small islands — most of them owned by Great Britain — although some were plucked from small boats. The Coast Guard also picked up some raiders but the number was small in relation to the number of refugees.

Report

Adm. E. Roland Coase Guard commandant, gave the figure in an annual report on service operations.

In addition to the refugee operations, the Coast Guard answered 37,330 calls for assistance and saved 1,900 persons in 1963.

During the year, the Coast Guard also began a program designed to coordinate the coastal surveillance activities of all federal and state agencies. Roland said this resulted from a study of U.S. vulnerability to enemy agents agents from the sea.

The possibility that nuclear explosives could be brought into the country in this way was mentioned as one reason for creating a unified coastal reporting network.

The Coast Guard set up four new electronic stations to aid navigation in the Pacific and another at the southern tip of Greenland. The stations, known as LORAN for Long Range Aid to Navigation, offer "interesting possibilities as a device for detecting nuclear detonations," the Coast Guard said. As such, the system will be "the forerunner of an electronic police man for the free world."

Two new 210-foot cutters of advanced design, the Diligence and Reliance, were christened and will soon join the fleet.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Dwelling On Past Gives No Solid Satisfaction

By ROBERT PETERSON

Every now and then someone raps me for urging elders to be active. Here's a note from a reader who quotes Dr. R. J. Van Zonneveld of The Hague as saying, "Old age should be a time for rest and contemplation in which the individual can reflect on the things he has seen and accomplished in his lifetime."

I'm doubtful if many elders find solid satisfaction in musing on past glories. I've had the pleasure of conversing with great numbers of elders in the past six years and feel most of them agree with W. B. Cannon who has been quoted as saying:

"Some day when you are older you will know that

Factory Pay Average Tops $100 In State

Employees of Nebraska manufacturing industries are being paid better salaries today than at any time in the state's history, State Labor Commissioner Lambert Etel reported Wednesday.

For the first time, he said, the average salary has risen above $100 per week.

Preliminary figures of the Nebraska Division of Employment show the average manufacturing worker to be paid approximately $100.80 a week for his services. The figure was reached by averaging the pay of approximately 51,600 workers in the state, a large percentage of them in the meat packing industries.

The wage average has risen steadily since 1959, when it fluctuated between $80 and $85 per week. Etel said.

3rd Annual Yule Tree-Burning Set For Monday Night

The third annual Twelfth Night Program, Burning of the Greens, will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Municipal Park.

The program, sponsored by the Lincoln YMCA, features the burning of Christmas trees and greens. Preceding the burning will be a community sing, a history of Twelfth Night, musical selections and a closing prayer.

Residents of Lincoln are invited to place their Christmas trees and greens inside the snow fence enclosure of the south diamond at Municipal Park or to bring them the night of the program.

Questions, Answers

Patricia Scott

If the top stitching looks tight, loosen the top tension. If the fabric drags under the presser foot, you'll have to lighten the pressure a little.

Q. You've described how to apply a bias facing on a square corner, but how do you do this with a straight facing? — MRS. H. W.

A. First cut a strip of fabric that matches in grain the longest edge you are going to face. Pin this facing to the edge and leave enough fabric at the corners to miter. Stitch the corners as in Figure A, trim the edges and press. Then stitch facing to garment as in Figure B. Turn the facing to the wrong side of the garment, fold raw edges under and pin. Then hem edges to garment as in Figure C.

Q. I'm getting married in February and would like to know what fabrics are right for a wedding party at this time of year? — MISS T. U.

A. Any of the following fabrics are suitable for a winter wedding: taffeta, peau de soie, velvet, chiffon, satin, velveteen, faille, tulle, lace or moire.

Q. I want to mend some undergarments but am not too familiar with elastic fabrics. Please advise. — MRS. L. K.

A. Use a fine needle and nylon thread. The stitch length should be small (14 per inch). Tension and pressure are important. Your best tension is usually light on both top and bobbin. Test a sample swatch of the fabric. If the bottom stitching looks tight, loosen your bobbin case tension screw slightly.

Q. I have very large cutting shears, but they are too heavy to work with. Before I buy a new pair, what size do you recommend for most home sewing? How do I keep them sharp? — MRS. P. J.

A. A good basic style is about eight inches long, with bent handles. To keep them sharp, use them only for cutting fabric — never paper.

Q. I have some ready-made dresses that need stays at the waistline seam. Since I do not want to take the dresses apart and apply ribbon in the seam, what else can I do? — MISS E. A.

A. Take seam tape or grosgrain ribbon and hand-tack it to the seams and darts all around the waistline. This will serve as a suitable waistline stay.

Germany, France Arguing Over Convicted OAS Chief

Paris (UPI) — Gaullist circles charged Wednesday that West Germany is demanding the return of a convicted Secret Army Organization (OAS) leader for domestic political reasons.

Officials said privately West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard wants the OAS chieftain, Antoine Argoud, back to appear his political opponents who are inflamed by Argoud's alleged kidnapping in Munich by French agents last year.

Argoud, 49, was sentenced to life imprisonment by a French court Monday for his part in a 1961 plot against the De Gaulle government. The OAS violently opposed De Gaulle's policy which led to independence for Algeria.

Slate Meeting

Inform sources said De Gaulle and his cabinet, at a scheduled meeting Thursday, stressed that France would would work out the text of a message rejecting in "firm and categorical terms" the Bonn demand, which was renewed Monday.

The sources said the cabinet also would set a date for a news conference later this month at which De Gaulle will outline new proposals for European unity.

For the second time within 24 hours, De Gaulle Wednesday reaffirmed the need for a greater European integration. He said at a presidential palace reception that furthering European unity is one of France's primary tasks in France.

The French reply to the German demand was expected to insist that while in Germany Argoud was not in political asylum, that he continued his subversive anti-De Gaulle activities there under an assumed name, and that, despite the kidnapping, French courts had handled his case in strict conformity with law.

Indonesia Renews Pledge

Jakarta, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesia charged into the new year Wednesday with renewed pledges to carry through its steadily growing though still short-of-war showdown with the neighboring Federation of Malaysia.

While Indonesian leaders made clear again they have no intention of shelving their policy of confrontation, Malaysia protested to the United Nations about a number of bloody attacks on its territory. It charged Indonesia with involvement.

Malaysians were angered by an ambush Sunday in their state of Sabah, formerly British North Borneo, in which eight Malaysian soldiers and a civilian were killed and 19 troops wounded.

The crush-Malaysia theme, most prominent tenet of Indonesian foreign policy over the past four months, remained in headlines here.

"The coming year is the year for crushing neocolonialism in Southeast Asia," Defense Minister Abdul Haris Nasution declared in a message to the Indonesian armed forces—with 350,000 men, biggest in this region.

No Weakness

"There should be no weakness and no laxness."

In an obvious reference to Britain, which is tied to Malaysia by a defense pact, Nasution said, "The security of the (Indonesian) revolution will not be assured as long as there are neocolonialists there and bases in Southeast Asia."

Britain has troops and air, land and naval bases in Malaysia.

Foreign minister Subandrio told a group of visiting American students that "our confrontation is just."

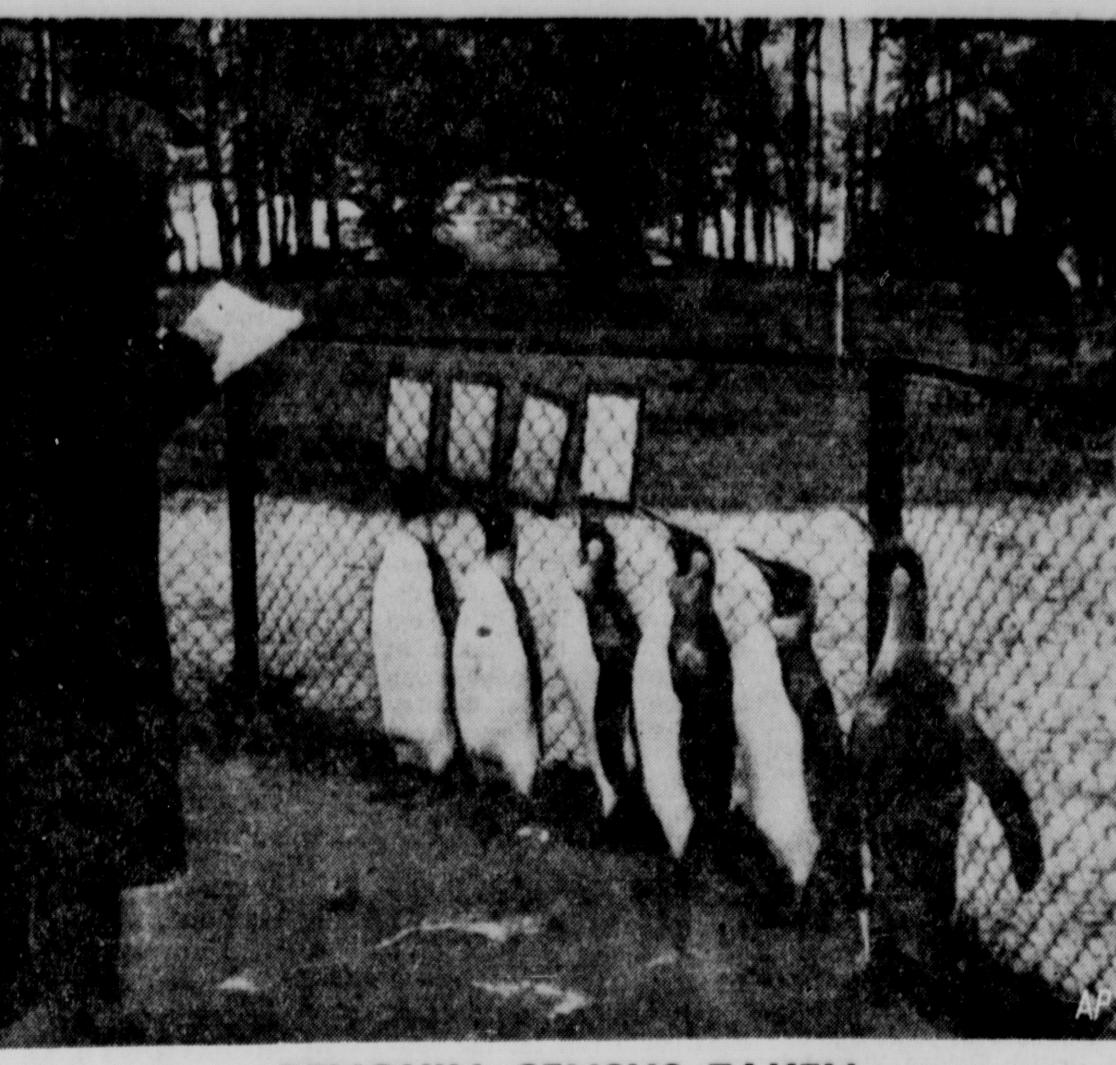

Stressed

Subandrio stressed oft-repeated Indonesian assertions that this country does not covet "one inch of Malaysian territory."

Meanwhile, U.S. Ambassador Howard W. Jones returned to Jakarta after more than two months of consultations in the United States.

Weather Stalls Mummers Parade

Philadelphia (AP) — Bad weather forced a two-day postponement of the city's traditional New Year's Day Mummers parade, and along with it a threatened demonstration against blackface minstrelsy in the spectacle.

Snow and sleet, which eventually turned to rain, were considered too much of a hazard to the marchers and their finery. So now the parade, a mixture of jollity, gorgeous costumes and sashaying string bands, will be held on Saturday. Similar postponements have been deemed necessary a few times before.

Parade officials welcomed the additional time in which to try to resolve differences that led civil rights advocates to assert they would form a human blockade to stall the parade, if blackface comedy were permitted.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People went to court in an effort to have blackface banned, but was turned down Tuesday. This was done on the ground that the city, which sponsors the parade, had promised that no part of the performance would offend anyone, racially or otherwise.

Religious leaders asked

Paul D'Ortona, president of the city council, to call off the parade to make sure there would be no violence.

D'Ortona refused, saying, "You can't go out and cancel the parade when the court says they have the right to hold it."

Meeting with the clergymen and D'Ortona were representatives of the NAACP and the Congress of Racial Equality, who reaffirmed their stand that all blackface masquerading must go. The clergymen suggested that a compromise might be worked out on the matter of blackface makeup.

Freeman Says Attack On Poverty Is Planned

Washington (UPI) — Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman said Wednesday the administration will announce in the near future new and enlarged programs designed to combat poverty in rural areas.

Freeman said in a new year's statement that the programs would be aimed at rural renewal, better rural housing, improved water systems, and other community facilities.

"All these efforts, and many more," he said, "will be channeled toward bringing rural America into the mainstream of American prosperity."

Two Problems

Freeman said the new year found rural America faced with two broad and interrelated problems. "(1) farm income that is still unfairly low, and (2) the existence of conditions of deep rural poverty affecting more than 15 million Americans, both farm and non-farm people."

He said he hoped that new wheat legislation could be put into effect to forestall a decline in farm income. He also was hopeful that new cotton legislation would be enacted and that new legislation for dairy products and certain other commodities would be considered.

Freeman said special wheat programs in 1962 and 1963, feed grain programs, and adjustments in price supports for other commodities had helped increase farm income by about $2.3 billion the last three years. But he said "the farmer's return is still not what it must be if agriculture is to share fully in American prosperity."

On the question of rural poverty, Freeman said:

"The existence of deep pockets or rural need is something that must not be tolerated by the greatest nation in history. Yet it exists—in terms of poor people both in agriculture and in small towns and rural communities that have been bypassed in the march of prosperity."

He said about half the nation's farm operator families—or some 1.6 million—have an income from all sources of less than $3,000 each. Nearly 2.9 million rural non-farm families suffer the same under-privileged status. Freeman said probably three-fourths of some 800,000 rural families whose chief income is derived from farm wages are deemed to be below the poverty level.

"Thus," he said, "more than 15 million rural Americans live under conditions of poverty."

For the second time within 24 hours, De Gaulle Wednesday reaffirmed the need for a greater European integration. He said at a presidential palace reception that furthering European unity is one of France's primary tasks in 1964.

In a message to the nation Tuesday night, De Gaulle said the new year called for greater efforts to bring about cooperation in the defense, political and cultural fields among European nations. He stressed that France would press its drive to achieve its own nuclear weapons.

Before releasing his message, De Gaulle conferred at length with Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville on the dispute with Germany over Argoud.

French officials took the stand that the Bonn demand for Argoud's return to Germany was in disregard of the Franco-German friendship treaty. They said there was little doubt that the former colonel would be kept in France.

The French reply to the German demand was expected to insist that while in Germany Argoud was not in political asylum, that he continued his subversive anti-De Gaulle activities there under an assumed name, and that, despite the kidnapping, French courts had handled his case in strict conformity with law.

Indonesia has admitted it has given military training to anti-Malaysia rebels on Borneo. However it has claimed its troops along the border are themselves not involved in aggression.

The crush-Malaysia theme, most prominent tenet of Indonesian foreign policy over the past four months, remained in headlines here.

Nehru Doesn't Intend To Resign In 1964

New Delhi (UPI) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru said Wednesday he has no intention of resigning this year.

The 74-year-old leader of India's millions made the statement in an exclusive New Year's Day interview with United Press International during which he said further doses of socialism may be prescribed for his nation's ailing economy in 1964.

"I suppose that I'll retire some day," Nehru said, "but I have no plans for that now, but I've been busy. Sometimes it's all I can do to get the work done."

Nehru appeared more tired than the last time he was interviewed by UPI. His voice appeared weak at times.

State Grain Trading

Nehru said a state-operated program of wholesale trading and cooperative retailing is likely to be applied to distribution of food-grains in India. Production of that commodity has been stagnant or falling in the past two years.

He added that he expected nationalization of Indian banks "sometime." The prime minister declared, however, that India's "mixed economy" would continue and that its biggest business, farming, would remain in private hands.

"Our most important problem is agricultural production," he said. "We are up against intermediaries — middlemen. They must be kept in check so prices and other things can be checked."

"There is some state trading now. It will increase. There will be more cooperative organization of distribution."

Nehru said the nationalization of Indian banks "is bound to be discussed when his ruling Congress Party holds its annual conference on Jan. 9."

Nehru said the party is expected to define its brand of socialism at the political meeting. He said his personal definition left room for private ownership of small businesses and farming.

"Nationalization of banks is not socialism," he said. "The definition is a matter of aims. The aims are greater production and better distribution so the common man can rise."

"But big industries are likely to become public. Small industries will remain in the private sector. We have a mixed economy and it will continue."

The biggest part of our economy is in the agricultural sector. It will continue to be private."

China's Impact

Turning to international affairs, Nehru said the impact of the Communist Chinese invasion in 1962 was still the biggest current factor in India. He did not rule out the possibility that the Sino-Indian border dispute might some day be settled.

"They (the Chinese Communists) have been saying 'Let's get together and discuss,'" he said. "They are not saying they won't budge if we do."

Nehru reiterated, however, that he will not negotiate the quarrel with Peking until he is satisfied they have satisfied all provisions of the Colombo proposals for demilitarizing the border area.

"Most provisions (of the Colombo proposals) have been accepted by both parties already," he said. "Only one or two have not been accepted by them (the Chinese Communists). We won't give them up, but on the other hand I am surprised they have not accepted them."

Attack Not Seen

Nehru said he did not expect any radical changes in the near future for either peace or renewed fighting with the Chinese.

Nehru listed the partial nuclear test ban treaty as the most important event of 1963 "after, of course, the assassination of President Kennedy."

"President Johnson has said that he will carry on President Kennedy's policies," Nehru said. "That is good."

He said he had not seen any changes in American policies since Johnson succeeded Kennedy.

The day is the time to make note of checking and savings account balances and the value of other intangible holdings such as stocks.

Tuesday's closing quotations will be used by the tax commissioner's office to figure the value of stock for tax purposes, he said.

Stock-owning taxpayers might do well to save the financial pages of newspapers from New Year's Day, he suggested.

He advised taxpayers to make sure they specify the type of stock in addition to the number of shares in making their tax returns, and to note carefully stock splits and dividends.

New Year's Day brought also a significant change in taxing procedures in that all property tax exemptions except governmental property were automatically and at least temporarily voided.

Review Required

A 1963 legislative act requires a review every four years, beginning with 1964, of all property in the state enjoying tax exemption.

Applications for exemptions were to have been submitted or postmarked before Jan. 1.

Within the next 30 days each county assessor is to supply his county board with recommendations on which properties should be tax exempt.

The law gives the tax commissioner the power to reverse individual exemption decisions of any county board.

Dallas (4)—Unsung quarterback Duke Carlisle passed for two touchdowns, ran for a third and overshadowed Navy's celebrated Roger Staubach Wednesday, as national champion Texas walloped the No. 2 Middies, 28-6, in the Cotton Bowl before 75,504.

Texas, which ran up a 10-0 season record with grind-it-out tactics, switched to the pass and threw early and often in the battle of the nation's two top-ranked teams.

The outcome ended any argument that the polls might have ranked the two clubs in the wrong order.

The Texas defense completely contained Staubach until it was too late for the Middies. The Navy quarterback finished with a Naval Academy record of 21 completed passes, but most of them came when the issue was decided.

In the early going, the scrambling Staubach resembled a fly captured in a bottle. His fumble on the Navy 34 set up the third Texas touchdown.

Texas also separated Staubach from the ball late in the fourth quarter on the Texas 49 and drove to the one-foot mark of Navy as the game ended.

Carlisle set a Cotton Bowl record for total offense. He gained 267 yards, 213 passing and 54 rushing.

The Texas senior hit sophomore wingback Phil Harris on scoring passes that covered over from the one for the touchdown.

Illinois went into the game favored by a touchdown but the Huskies, champions of the Big Six, dominated this 50th anniversary Rose Bowl struggle in the first half. And they did it at dear cost.

Starting quarterback Bill Douglas went out of the game on a stretcher with a dislocated left knee on the first scoring threat on the first series of plays.

The Huskies, with Bill Siler taking over, went on to the Illini 10 but Al Libke, after taking a pass from Siler, fumbled and Illinois' Wylie Fox recovered.

Another Drive Halted Again the Huskies traveled downfield but the thrust collapsed on the 21 when Fox literally stole the ball from Siler for what went officially as a fumble the second in the first quarter.

An Illini fumble led to Washington's touchdown when Fren Custard, alternate quarterback, was hit and lost the ball to Washington's John Stupay on the Illinois 27.

Four plays later, Washington scored, with Dave Kopay taking a high pitchout from Siler and slanting seven yards for the score.

Again in this hard belting game, a fumble led to a score—a 32-yard field goal on the last play of the half by Illinois' kicking specialist, Jim Plankenhorn.

Pro Gridder Shot To Death

. . . MARCONI INJURED

Wheaton, Ill. (AP)—Tony Parrilli, 24, former University of Illinois football star and professional linebacker, was shot to death and fullback Joe Marconi of the Chicago Bears was injured early Wednesday during a New Year's Eve party at a bowling alley.

Capt. Herbert Mertes of the Du Page County sheriff's office said Parrilli was shot accidentally by a police official who was attempting to break up a scuffle at the Willowbrook Lanes in Willowbrook, a Du Page County community southwest of Chicago.

Marconi, who started for the Bears in their National Football League championship victory over the New York Giants Sunday, suffered head injuries during the scuffle. He was treated at Hinsdale Hospital, where doctors said eight stitches were required to close his wounds, and released.

One of the owners of the bowling alley is Mike Ditka, star end for the Bears.

Single Shot

Mertes said Parrilli was slain by a single shot accidentally fired by Chief of Police Robert G. Winthers of Willowbrook as he and another policeman sought to break up a scuffle in a washroom involving Parrilli, Marconi and a third man who was not identified.

Marconi, 29, was acquired by the Bears from Los Angeles after six years with the Rams, who drafted him No. 1 out of West Virginia in 1956. He took over as the Bears' No. 1 fullback in mid-season when Rick Casares was hurt.

Marconi caught three passes for 64 yards and gained five yards on three carries in the Bears' 14-10 triumph over the Giants for the league title Sunday.

He is a native of Fredericksburg, Pa., now living in Lombard, Ill.

State's Wildlife Survives Cold

Below zero temperatures and snow apparently have not caused any significant losses to the wildlife population according to the Game Commission.

"To be sure," said George Schildman, game technician, "we have lost a few pheasants, rabbits, quail, and other game species. But, those individuals that died as a result of the cold, generally were the weak or injured ones. These would not be desirable for breeding stock, so their loss is insignificant."

The commission spokesman said that game birds and animals survive winter weather as long as they have sufficient cover and food. He also pointed out that most instances of winter feeding of birds by sportsmen does more harm than good.

Torres, a knockout puncher, did not predict he would stop Gonzalez but said he was "just going into the fight to win" in defense of his title. Gonzalez said he would be trying to wear down Torres as he had worn down Rubin Carter and other opponents.

Fighters Wind Up Pre-Bout Training

New York (AP)—Jose Torres and Jose Gonzalez finished training Wednesday for their Friday night fight at Madison Square Garden for the Puerto Rican middleweight title. Torres weighed 160 pounds and Gonzalez 158 1/2.

Torres, a knockout puncher, did not predict he would stop Gonzalez but said he was "just going into the fight to win" in defense of his title. Gonzalez said he would be trying to wear down Torres as he had worn down Rubin Carter and other opponents.

Chargers May Need New 'Bolt'

San Diego (AP) — Rain or shine—and the weatherman says it probably will shine—the Boston Patriots will face the threat of lightning bolts when they meet the San Diego Chargers in the American Football League title game at Balboa Stadium Sunday.

The AFL Eastern Division champions will return to the same turf where, on a sunny day last Sept. 14, they did a remarkable job of stifling San Diego's offense. But two lightning-like strikes boosted the Western Division champs to a 17-13 victory.

In a second regular season game this year, on a cold and rainy day in Boston, lightning struck the Pats again—and it gave the Chargers a 7-6 decision. Both times the Pats outdid the Chargers in everything but scoring.

Role Stopped

In the first game, Charger quarterback Tobin Rote, the AFL's Player of the Year, completed only eight of 21 passes and the Boston line hamstrung the usually blistering San Diego ground game.

Halfback Paul Lowe, ranked second among AFL rushers, gained six yards, and fullback Keith Lincoln, fourth-ranked, picked up 42.

But flanker Lance Alworth caught four passes and one was good for a 43-yard San Diego touchdown.

Flourish

A flourish that Charger coach Sid Gillman perfected for that first game also paid off—with a 71-yard scoring strike. Lowe, unable to run, faked a sweep and lofted a pass to end Jerry Robinson.

SIX HUSKERS INK CONTRACTS FOR PRO BALL

By Associated Press

Six Nebraska football players signed professional contracts Wednesday night shortly after the Cornhuskers defeated Auburn, 13-7, in the Orange Bowl.

Bob Brown, NU's All-American guard, signed with the Philadelphia Eagles, tackle Lloyd Voss with the Green Bay Packers, tackle Bob Jones with the Washington Redskins and tackle Monte Kiffin and guard John Kirby with the Minnesota Vikings in the NFL. Halfback Willie Ross inked a Buffalo Bills' contract for action in the AFL.

The Eagles said General Manager Cince McNally signed the 6-foot-4½ Brown in a Miami Beach hotel lobby immediately after the Orange Bowl game. No terms were announced.

Brown also was the No. 1 draft choice of the Denver Broncos of the American Football League.

Bobby Walston, former Eagle star who scouts for the club, said Brown is certain to make good in pro football.

"He has everything to do it—speed, size and power," Walston said.

Auburn halfback George Rose and teammate Howard Simpson signed with Minnesota.

NWU Garners Three Votes

HAYES...breasts tape in record-tying 9.1.

Hayes Streaks To 9.1 100 On Soggy Track

... HUSKERS WIN MILE RELAY EVENT

Miami, Fla. (AP) — Big Bob Hayes, assisted by a breeze of about 10 miles per hour, equalled his pending world record of 9.1 seconds for the 100-yard dash Wednesday.

Because of the wind, Hayes' performance won't be put up for official recognition. But the husky Florida A&M football player's time was sensational nevertheless, because he ran on a cinder track soggy from a two-day deluge.

The 100 was the big thrill for the crowd of 5,000 at the first annual Orange Bowl.

"Any day now," remarked Hayes' jubilant coach, Dick Hill, "he'll make it in nine seconds flat."

Later in the day the muscular Hayes surprised Dave Sime, the world's 220-yard dash record holder, by approaching within one-tenth of a second on Sime's eight-year-old mark of 20 seconds flat on the same slow track.

"He's fantastic," declared Sime, a former Duke University star and now a surgeon at Miami's Jackson Memorial Hospital, after watching Hayes slow up and still hit the tape at 20.1 seconds.

At the end of the straightaway, just a few feet beyond the finish line, stood a crowd of fans watching the race and Hayes, afraid that he could not stop in time, slowed just short of the line.

This wasn't the day for another world record holder, John Pennel.

Fails Four Times

The Northeast Louisiana College ace, who broke the world pole vault record six times last year—the last time with a leap of 17 feet, 3½ inches on this same field—failed four times in an effort to add one inch to his mark.

In practice last week, Pennel had twice cleared 17 feet, six inches, only to see the bar toppled by his trailing hand.

Nebraska's mile relay team won that event with Dick Strand, Tucker Lillis, Dave Crook and Gil Gebo being timed in 3:19.0.

Gebo was awarded a trophy as one of the four top competitors in the meet.

Hayes, in starting his 1963 competitive campaign for the Olympics, ran his stunning race Wednesday even without a serious push from his opposition.

Dave Styron of Northeast Louisiana State, who has been clocked at 9.3 in the century, was counted upon to press Hayes in this event, but he had to withdraw after straining a leg muscle in the 440-yard dash.

Otherwise, no world or American records were challenged in the Orange Bowl's first annual meet.

Gary Gubner of New York University, whose best mark in the shotput is 64 feet, 11½ inches, could do only 59 feet, 7½ inches in winning Wednesday's event.

The Florida A&M 440 relay team, which made the best time of 40.4 seconds in the United States last year, had to settle for 42.6 on Wednesday's slow track. The world mark is 40 seconds flat.

Elliott Visits Injured Husky

Pasadena, Calif. (AP) — The first thing Coach Pete Elliott of victorious Illinois did after the Rose Bowl game Wednesday was to pegle it to Washington's injured star quarterback Bill Douglas and blurt:

"I can't say how sorry I am."

Douglas, injured as he brilliantly directed a brisk Washington opening drive, was in a wheel chair, his dislocated knee heavily bandaged.

Elliott still limps badly from a knee wrench in Illinois' first Rose Bowl practice. But he hustled to Douglas at the entrance of the Washington dressing room before he entered his own ill-fated Illini dressing room.

Although Illinois wore down Washington in the second half, Elliott conceded it was "most unfortunate Douglas was lost so early in the game."

He added:

"What difference it might have made had Douglas played the whole game, I don't know. I think Bill Siler is a good quarterback. But Douglas was their quarterback most of the season."

SAILORS IMPRESSED Navy's Hardin Agrees Longhorns Rate No. 1

Dallas (AP) — Any doubt about who is the nation's No. 1 football team?

"Ha," laughed Texas tackle Staley Faulkner. "Not a n y doubt in the world."

"I got to asking those Navy players about that out there. And you know, they didn't want to talk about it."

The veteran senior lineman typified many of the Texas players as they chanted victory chants after crushing Navy, 28-6, in the Cotton Bowl classic New Year's Day.

"We really wanted this," Faulkner said.

And across the steamy dressing room Darrell Royal, the young coach of the nation's top-ranked team, was all smiles as a Navy admiral approached him and said:

"There's no damn doubt about who's No. 1."

Bryant Lauds Tide Defense

New Orleans (AP) — True to his character, Alabama Coach Paul Bryant gloried in the defense that held Mississippi to one touchdown Wednesday in the Sugar Bowl.

"Defense had to be the difference," said Bryant in the dressing room. "Anytime you hold Ole Miss to seven points it's got to be good."

It was the field goal kicking of Tim Davis, a slender specialist, which won for Alabama. Davis set a Sugar Bowl record by booting four field goals—and broke all bowl records with his dashes.

Bryant said the game was won on the goal line in the fourth quarter when his Crimson Tide stopped Ole Miss on the two.

"That was the same place where we beat Oklahoma in 1950," said Bryant.

It was in the 1950 Sugar Bowl that Kentucky, then coached by Bryant, upset national champion Oklahoma, 13-7.

Ole Miss' John Vaught was puzzled by his team's performance.

"I never can remember going through a half in my life without making a first down," said Vaught.

Schrader Signs

Carthage, Ill. (UPI) — Gene Schrader, star tackle and linebacker for Carthage College's football team and former Milwaukee Lutheran High School player, has signed a contract with the Denver Broncos of the American Football League.

Other teams offering three or more points—Rockhurst (11); Northeastern and Indiana State (10 each); Weber State, Assumption (Mass.), 8 each; Carroll, Co., 7 each; Ohio State, 6 each; Quincy, 5 each; Massachusetts, St. Beulah, Lewis and Clark, Akron, Warner 4 each; Nebraska Wesleyan, Tennessee 3 each.

1963 Busy Year For Lincoln's Fire And Police Departments

By TOM KEITH
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Police and Fire Departments were kept hopping in 1963, answering thousands of complaints ranging from minor fires to a "two-alarm" in February and from parking complaints to murder cases.

Lincoln recorded two murders, six armed robberies, and five fatality accidents. Firemen answered several fire alarm and resuscitation calls weekly.

In calendar order here is a rundown of the most newsworthy events recorded by the Fire and Police Departments in 1963:

Jan. 13 — A late-evening fire gutted the home of Morris Bartlett, 1048 West 2nd. Fire inspectors said the blaze was caused by defective wiring.

Feb. 9 — Lincoln recorded its first fatality of the year as a result of a fire. The home of Elmer Safranak, 3325 Randolph, burst into flames from an undetermined cause. Agnes Brady, 50, died as a result of being overcome by smoke and intense heat.

1st Traffic Fatality
Feb. 11 — Melvin G. Hobbs, 47, of Detroit, Mich., became Lincoln's first traffic fatality of 1963 when the truck he was driving was struck by a Burlington Railroad train at the Burlington tracks on No. 27th.

Feb. 11 — An armed robber held up the Erickson Service Station, 28th and O, and made off with about $250. Neil Gregg Rhodes was convicted of the offense and was sentenced to four years in prison.

Feb. 25 — 1963's only two-alarm fire caused considerable damage to the Glenn's Dads and Lads Clothing Store, 6132 Llavelock.

Feb. 27 — Police answered a call to 810 So. 11th, and in an upstairs apartment found the body of Susanne Lord. Her husband, James E. Lord, a Lincoln Air Force Base airman, later that day admitted killing his wife with a knife. On April 17th he was sentenced to life imprisonment.

March 3 — Mrs. Rose Anna Jordan, 46, of 1002 L, died as a result of burns she suffered in a fire in her apartment Feb. 2.

Struck By Train

March 3 — Lawrence G. Thomas, 44, of 1845 O, was killed when the car he was driving was struck by a train at the Union Pacific tracks on Park Blvd.

March 9 — A fire in the home of Jonathan McWilliams, 1842 R, partially gutted the house before firemen extinguished the blaze. Three small children were rescued from the fire by Harold Lincoln, a used car salesman who was working across the street from the burning house. The cause of the fire was undetermined.

April 16 — The trailer home of Irene Hackstadt, 2801 No. 26th, was gutted when one of her five children lighted an oil stove. The flame spread to a puddle of coal oil. Mrs. Hackstadt and her children escaped unharmed, but most of their possessions were destroyed.

April 26 — William Neylon, a clerk at Baroch's Liquor Store, 2365 O, was shot in the arm in an early evening hold-up. Robert Ferrario, 35, of St. Paul, Minn., was arrested minutes after the hold-up and was convicted of the offense. He was sentenced to seven years in prison.

April 27 — A fire in the home of Lee N. Hinrichs, 2926 Plymouth, sent Hinrichs and his 17-month-old daughter to the hospital with severe burns. The blaze started when the child pulled burning papers out of the fire place.

$1,000 Diamond Ring

May 18 — Wally's Gun Shop, 2230 N, was held up by two men who struck the owner, Wally Smith, on the head with a gun. They made off with $28 in cash, a $1,000 diamond ring, and two automatic pistols. The pair was arrested in Canada about a month later after they robbed a Canadian bank.

July 3 — A fire at Sherman Field, 2nd and South, destroyed the press box. Fire inspectors said a discarded cigarette probably started the fire.

July 24 — William T. Owenses, 33, of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station in Great Lakes, Ill., shot and killed his 36-year-old wife, Minnie Marie, and then turned the gun on himself. The murder-suicide occurred near 9th and Oak.

July 27 — A fire in room 33 at the Lincoln Hotel, 9th and P, did heavy damage to the room and heavy smoke damage to the third floor of the hotel. The cause was undetermined.

Aug. 9 — A fire in the apartment of Ed D. Rape, 1921 B, gutted the apartment and burned all the Rape's possessions.

Sept. 10 — A car-train collision at the Rock Island tracks on No. 66th, killed Laura Lambert, 36, of 3040 No. 68th.

Severe Burns

Sept. 18 — Don Porter, 23, of 2027 No. 59th, suffered severe burns in a fire at Harvey's Texaco Service Station, 44th and O, when gasoline he was using to clean the floor ignited.

Congress Achieved School Aid, Ban OK

Washington (P) — Three aid-to-education bills and ratification of the limited nuclear test-ban treaty were the major achievements of the long 1963 session of Congress which ended Monday.

But left over until the new session starting Jan. 7 were big battles over civil rights and tax cuts, plus a batch of other important bills.

The marathon session, the longest since Korean War days, finally struggled to its belated close at 1:51 P.M. CST when the House adjourned sine die. The Senate had quit 32 minutes earlier, at 1:19 p.m.

Longest In Peace

The session started last Jan. 9 and thus ran across a span of 356 days, making it, in effect, the longest peacetime session. The 80th Congress in 1948 was officially in session for 361 days but this session included recesses totalling more than five months. This Congress took no such prolonged recesses.

The legislators have only eight days for finishing off their interrupted Christmas-New Year holiday and getting in some back-home fence-mending for the election year ahead before reporting back for the second session of the 88th Congress.

The first session denied to President John F. Kennedy and to his successor, President Johnson, the two measures placed at the top of the administration legislative priority list — civil rights and a tax cut.

Both Progressed

But both made progress during the year — the tax cut passed one branch, the House — and Democratic leaders said they are confident both will be enacted into law in 1964.

Several other major Kennedy recommendations also failed to get through, including the youth-employment bill and boosting college student loan funds as a part of a one-year extension of the National Defense Education Act.

Nevertheless, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana insisted the record of the 1963 session was "quite respectable."

Mansfield declared that a Congress passed 65% of the 137 recommendations sent to him by Kennedy. He emphasized that the final word on the 88th Congress cannot be said until after its second session is completed.

But some Republicans — and some Democrats — used such terms as "standstill," "painful stagnancy" and "do-nothing" to describe the session.

Senate Minority Leader

Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., said he prefers to call it a "stop, look and listen Congress" that displayed its independence of the executive branch.

Long stretches of inaction during the year irritated many senators and House members and led to charges of weak, drifting leadership. The last fight of the session involved the battered foreign aid program, setting the stage for an expected major overhaul of the whole program next year.

A compromise $3 billion bill finally worked out — cut more than $1.5 billion below Kennedy's request.

Johnson was given power to grant government guarantees of payment for wheat sales to communist countries when he deems them in the national interest.

Kennedy made the $1 billion tax cut and a broad civil rights bill his top-priority items for the 1963 session.

Much of the year was spent in long-drawn-out committee sessions on these two measures, plus behind-the-scenes maneuvering aimed at working out acceptable compromises.

The House finally passed the tax measure Sept. 25. But the bill never got out of the Senate Finance Committee, although that group did complete two months of public hearings on it and began taking votes on it details.

To Resume

The committee will resume its work Jan. 8 and now is expected to clear it for Senate debate by Feb. 1.

Part of the delay resulted from the insistence of Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., the Finance Committee chairman, that before a vote, he see the budget for the fiscal year starting next July which Johnson will submit in January.

The civil rights fight did not get under way in earnest until Kennedy sent up his special message on the subject June 19 following a wave of Negro demonstrations in many cities.

Shortly before Kennedy's assassination, he succeeded in working out a bipartisan compromise on this legislation which is expected to bring eventual House passage.

But the House Rules Committee prevented any floor action on the bill this year, although Chairman Howard W. Smith, D-Va., now has pledged to start hearings on it Jan. 9.

Senate Fireworks

The big battle will come in the Senate, where the Southerners have pledged to take full advantage of the unlimited debate rule — which could mean a full-fledged filibuster.

Civil rights is considered certain to furnish the supreme test of Johnson's leadership in the 1964 election year.

The 1963 Congress voted slightly more than $100 billion in new appropriations but cut them about $6 billion below Kennedy's requests — the biggest slash in 10 years.

The nuclear test-ban treaty, ratified 80 to 19 by the Senate Sept. 24, was listed by Mansfield as the high point of the session.

Supporters said it held out some promise of a thaw in the cold war and should end pollution of the atmosphere from weapons tests.

Education Advances

But it was in the field of education that the Democrats saw the greatest legislative advances of the year. Johnson said the Congress would be known as the education Congress.

The three bills enacted carried out many of the recommendations of Kennedy in the comprehensive message he submitted in January.

Nothing was done, however, in the sharply controversial field of general aid for public grade and high schools. The three bills which passed provided:

1. $1.2 billion for college construction.

2. $1.56 billion increasing funds for vocational education and orienting the program toward modern job opportunities, extending for two years aid to schools crammed with children of federal workers and boosting college student loan funds as a part of a one-year extension of the National Defense Education Act.

3. $21 million for grants to help build new medical schools and provide loan money for students of medicine and dentistry.

Health Laws

Congress also passed important new health legislation, particularly in the field of mental retardation research: $329 million authorized for wide research into the causes of mental retardation, for care of the mentally retarded, and for construction of community mental health centers designed to take advantage of new treatment methods in the field of mental illness.

—$350 million in grants for maternity care and research projects aimed at prevention of mental retardation and for expansion of maternal and child health services.

Aside from civil rights and the tax cut, probably the key administration disappointment was the failure of a Social Security -financed health care plan for the aged to make any progress.

The House Ways and Means Committee opened hearings on this in November, but did not complete them.

Also frustrated were the high hopes for the youth employment bill, give the "No. 1" bill designation of the year in both branches.

It passed the Senate in April but never got to the floor. The bill is designed to provide hundreds of thousands of jobs in conservation camps and on local public service projects.

Mass Transit

A $375 million mass-transit subsidy bill aimed at helping large cities with commuting problems also passed the Senate in April but never reached a House vote.

In June the House rejected, 209 to 204, an attempt to pump an additional $455 million into the depressed areas program — which had been the first major enactment of the Kennedy administration in 1961.

The Senate two weeks later voted to put through this bill and give the House another chance at it, but leaders there never risked it.

A bill to create a National Service Corps, called the domestic Peace Corps, passed the Senate in August but was not called up in the House.

All of these measures left hanging — still will be alive in the 1964 session.

Other important bills passed were:

—A $527 million measure extending and broadening the 1963 Manpower Training Act to provide additional training for youths and to add literacy courses to the program.

—An equal-pay-for-women act to guarantee them the same pay as men for the same work.

—A compulsory arbitration bill on two issues — firemen and crew makeup — which had threatened a nationwide rail tieup in a dispute between the railroads and five brotherhoods.

—An increase in the authorized size of the Peace Corps to 11,000.

—A one-year extension of the Mexican farm labor program.

An $816 million bill authorizing additional river basin and flood control public works projects.

last of three 1963 bills on the subject.

A two-year voluntary program of controls over production of seed grains.

—A three-year $95 million program of aid to states and localities in combating air pollution.

—A $1.2 billion military pay increase.

—A four-year extension of the draft.

—An increase in the authorized size of the Peace Corps to 11,000.

—A one-year extension of the Mexican farm labor program.

An $816 million bill authorizing additional river basin and flood control public works projects.

A BANG-UP NEW YEAR

Omaha (UPI) — Ezell Henderson was really going to whoop it up New Year's eve.

At the stroke of midnight, Henderson, 25, ran out onto his porch waving a .22 revolver, determined to let his neighbors know it was a new year.

The gun fell from his hands and went off as it struck the porch steps.

Henderson was reported in good condition with a bullet wound in the heel.

2 Scottsbluff Residents Die In Car Crash

Gering (P) — Two persons were fatally injured when the car in which they were riding left the highway and struck a tree at the south edge of Gering shortly before midnight Tuesday.

The victims were James R. Rogers and Mrs. Cheryl Cline, both 20, and of Scottsbluff. Mrs. Cline's 21-year-old husband, Larry, was hospitalized in serious condition. He was the driver of the car.

Two passengers in the back seat, Mr. and Mrs. Dick McCollum of Scottsbluff, escaped with cuts and bruises.

Youth, 19, Hit In Left Wrist By .22 Bullet

Joseph G. Miller, 19, 4225 Everett, was shot in the left wrist early Wednesday morning, police said. The shooting took place in front of 2810 So. 8th. Miller told police.

Miller described his assailant as a Negro male, six foot and 185 pounds.

Police said Miller was shot by a .22 caliber revolver. The man apparently fired two shots, police said.

Miller and a companion, Jerry L. Palmer, 19, 4413 M, had stopped their car to speak to the man, police said, when the man went to his car, got the revolver and started firing.

Miller was treated and released from Lincoln General Hospital.

Surviving are a son, Lewis W. of Hastings; daughters, Mrs. Grace Barmore, a former Democratic national committeewoman from Lexington, Mrs. Marcia Eastwood of New York and Mrs. Margaret Doll of Lincoln; a sister, Miss Myrtle Wood of Wabash; nine grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

Markets Closed New Year's Day

All major markets were closed Wednesday, New Year's Day.

Red China Tells People Everything Prosperous

Tokyo (UPI) — Red China claimed Wednesday that everything was prosperous as it entered the new year, but told its people they still must spur their nation's agriculture into another great leap forward.

The last "great leap," inspired by Mao Tse-tung, fell flat on its face. But this time the Communists-controlled millions on the China mainland were told their "most important task" for 1964 will be to make certain that agriculture takes a giant stride ahead.

The Chinese Communist regime said "all efforts will be devoted" toward accomplishing this goal and all industries will be mobilized to support the effort. Even more workers will be diverted from the cities to the farms this year, they indicated.

BURGLAR TAKES $1,791 IN FURS, GUNS AND CASH

William Kite, 2740 R, reported to police Wednesday morning that $1,791 in furs, weapons and cash were taken from his apartment sometime during the night.

The apartment was entered through a window, police said.

He told police that $166 in cash, three fur pieces valued at $1,100, a revolver and a rifle valued at $525 were taken from a bedroom in the apartment.

Despite "Calamities"

It said "increases" were made in grain and industrial crops during the year, despite "serious natural calamities."

No basic figures were given.

The calamities caused by grave waterlogging in certain parts of northern China "were serious," the editorial said. But it said because of the efforts of the people's communes "bumper crops" were produced even in some of the hardest-hit areas.

Fewer Cigarettes Smoked In State, Tax Figures Show

Nebraskans smoked nearly four million fewer packages of cigarettes in 1963 than they did in 1962, state tax figures showed Wednesday.

The tax on cigarettes climbed from four to six cents per package last June 1, but whether the tax increase provoked the decline in cigarette use could only be speculated upon.

During 1963, taxes totaling $11,177,806 were collected on 167,848,500 packages.

In calendar 1962, taxes of $6,524,447 were collected on 171,639,510 packages.

First National's '63 Earnings Go Over $1 Million

Net operating earnings of First National Bank & Trust Company of Lincoln including earnings of First Continental Building Corporation, a wholly owned subsidiary, totaled $1,041,000 in 1963. Earnings in 1962 were $957,000.

Based on the average number of shares outstanding, per share earnings were $2.25 in 1963 as against $2.12 in 1962.

British Defense Chief To Tour Bases In East

London (AP) — Defense Minister Peter Thorneycroft is leaving Thursday for a two-week tour of British military bases in the Middle and Far East.

He will visit Aden, Kuala Lumpur, Singapore, Brunei, Hong Kong, Bahrain, Cyprus and Malta.

Killer Stalks Dark House, Chops Man, Girl To Death

Smallwood, N.Y. (AP) — A killer stalked a darkened home with an ax Wednesday and beat to death a man and a teen-aged girl. A second girl narrowly escaped death.

The motive was not immediately clear, although a man accused of being the killer was said to have formerly been engaged to one of the girls.

The victims met death after a New Year's night out. Their slayer hid for hours in a closet to waylay them after their return home.

The victims were Joseph McAdams, 49, a clerk in the state motor vehicles department at nearby Monticello, and Judith Needough, 19, who was spending the night with McAdams' daughter.

Florence McAdams, 20, the daughter, was strangled into

Fatal Noisemaker

Munich, Germany (AP) — Battasar Elgass, 24, a construction worker of Amberg, got out a hand grenade for New Year's noisemaking. The grenade exploded before he could throw it, killing him and injuring one man of a group around him.
